Summer Analyst (2015 Internship), Hong Kong

As a Summer Intern your role is to support your team in helping investment analysts at some of the world's leading investment firms get smart on complex and fast-moving investment opportunities. Starting from an initial client brief, you will independently research clients' targeted industries with a view to identifying, vetting and engaging the best-informed industry professionals who can provide actionable, 'deal-moving' insight.

Canadian breweries today, Spanish toll roads tomorrow, Nigerian consumer goods the day after – you will take an investor's perspective on multiple markets each week, build relationships with leading figures from industry, and maintain exceptional standards of professionalism in a fast-paced environment.

Responsibilities:

You will be immersed in a challenging ten weeks program, during which you will gain high-level exposure and hands on experience in a fast-paced and dynamic atmosphere. From day one, you are carefully matched with a 1-on-1 mentor within one of our four client segments, and your mentor will work closely with you throughout the summer to provide you with immense guidance - training, coaching, and providing feedback on your work as well as your professional and academic interests. For the first two weeks, you and your summer analyst class will absorb information, and learn the technical skill set needed to excel at AlphaSights in a structured, competitive, and interactive training program. Throughout the ten weeks, summer analysts spend the majority of time working on short term, project based assignments driven from actual client requests. Projects involve qualitative research and communication with key industry players.

Requirements:

Ability to thrive in an ever-changing, fast-paced environment

High-level of academic achievement at school and university

Exceptional verbal communication skills

'Always on', client-first mindset

Confident, get-things-done mentality

Self-motivation and ability to work autonomously while maintaining focus and work-ethic
